Inventor's Story

June 9, 2006 was a day I will never forget. A car accident changed the course of my life entirely. Leaving the hospital a week later with a broken back, I experienced humiliation and frustration as others assisted in keeping me clean. I was restricted to the house for weeks due to unpredictable bathroom visits and no adequate personal hygiene aid. The occupational therapists had little to offer that was convenient and sanitary. Therefore, I began creating my own tool, in hopes of regaining independence and personal dignity. The Freedom Wand™ is the result of this struggle. Next time an occupational therapist is asked, "How do I reach...?" They will have a much better answer!
